How To Hack Facebook Account? | Facebook Hacks | Security Patch Facebook wants to preserve your privacy and security on its site, and the first thing they do is check for outbound links. No matter what you're looking for, the big and the small – if you can search for it using your search bar, you can find it on the Facebook platform. To change your settings, go to the settings section, and you'll find a tab called general. Learn more about how we process your personal data and your rights here. Moreover, Facebook may use the information for internal purposes, such as analysing or managing their products and services. Facebook doesn't provide a simple means of changing your own privacy settings. For those people who are looking to change the privacy settings on Facebook, the steps are as follows: Go to your Facebook profile settings, go to the Privacy section and choose one of the choices under the 'Visibility' category. You have to scroll down and choose the option, 'Personal info' and click on the Update Info button. Please note that your Facebook privacy settings can be changed for each of your friends, as well. On the left-hand side of the screen, under the 'Privacy' section, you'll find a list of your friends, as well as a link to each of your friend's profile pages. And in case you need to contact Facebook, you can find the Facebook Customer Care support page. This should help you contact the Facebook customer care service. Ask HN: Books, online, or otherwise to teach linux command line - myrandomcomment Hi, I'm trying to gain more command line knowledge to get better at coding. Are there any good online or books that are good resources for learning more of the command line as far as utilities etc. I've been using Linux since 2005 and have become comfortable enough with it. ===== steven_g [[Correlation between the degree of glomerular vascular permeability and the ratio of hematocrit, viscosity and density in anemia induced by subcutaneous injection of phenylhydrazine hydrochloride in mice].
